In Memoriam: Senator John S. McCain 1936 - 2018

Few of us have been tested the way John once was, or required to show the kind of courage that he did. But all of us can aspire to the courage to put the greater good above our own. At John's best, he showed us what that means. And for that, we are all in his debt.

Seven Deadly Sins or Does Immunity Equal Forgiveness?

The dTrump and his minions certainly have the bases covered on all counts. Every news cycle brings news of more officials who are indicted, charged, tried and sent to jail. As the diligent, hard working Robert S. Muller, III and his team investigate the extensive body of information and persons, the extent of corruption, the individual criminality is vast.

On Tuesday, August 21, 2018, a jury found Paul Manafort guilty on eight counts of tax and bank fraud, false statements, being an unregistered agent of a foreign principal, obstruction of justice. Facing years of incarceration, Manafort admitted guilt and immediately revealed evidence of criminal involvements of an “un-named” co-conspirator (presumed to be Trump). On the same day, Michael D. Cohen pleaded guilty to tax evasion, bank fraud, and campaign finance violations.

Within two days, New York Attorney General Barbara Underwood asked the state’s Department of Taxation and Finance to make a referral on Cohen, an administrative step that would allow her office to investigate him for possible violations of state tax law, according to a person familiar with the state probe. Next came investigations into the Trump Organization, and the Trump Foundation. David Pecker, CEO of National Enquirer Publisher, after disclosing his company had a safe filled with information on the activities of dTrump and his family and associates, was granted immunity from prosecution.

And what is the Congress doing during all of this time? This august body of elected officials are working to confirm a Supreme Court Justice whose record is being suppressed, hidden from review — except from a record where the nominee states the president of the United States is above [not subject to] the law. Two more members of the House have been indicted, charged with crimes. Rep. Duncan Hunter, CA-50R (and his wife), were indicted for misuse of campaign funds. With a history of a lavish lifestyle, his bank account was overdrawn 1,100 times resulting in over $37,000 in fees. He paid $800 to fly his pet bunny to Washington.

Just today, the U.S. Congress announced the reopening of the investigation into the emails of Hillary Clinton.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, there are still over 550 children who remain jailed, separated from their families, living in cages, with no plan to reunite them with their families. Jeff Sessions, U.S. Attorney General has a documented record of racism and misleading Congress. The U.S. Secretary of Education, Betsy DeVos announced plans to arm teachers with guns, paid for out of taxpayer funds designated for instruction.

Make no mistake, we, the people, are in grave danger by the criminal acts of those in power. Those who have asked for immunity and leniency are providing much insight into these acts, these crimes revealed in the seven deadly sins. Much damage has been done to us all. Our rule of law, granted in the U.S. Constitution is withstanding the assault. Immunity (and leniency in punishment) will make possible the goal of finding the truth. It is damage control, not absolution.

We Are DONE!

—Faith Chatham

When I was a young college girl it appeared that we would get the ERA passed and ratified. I am no longer young. I am not a college girl with most of my life ahead of me. We are fighting the same battles. We cannot continue doing the same things in the same old way. We have been there. Already done that.

I saw Hillary Clinton get more votes in Texas than any Democratic Presidential Nominee in Texas history and to see more Americans vote for her than for her opponent(s) yet pundits refer to her as “one of the most unpopular candidates in history!” Unpopular with whom? The minority/ Not the Majority. It is easier to rail against the Electoral College than to understand the Constitution and refuse to have it hijacked!

I have heard folks say that women’s current activism is all because of Donald Trump. They are WRONG. We were pissed before Trump. Rape kits sat untested in store rooms across America. Women suffered sexual harassment or were silenced or fired when we objected. We worked for 50 or 60 cents [per hour] or if we were fortunate, 70 cents to our male co-workers dollar. We survived by working harder, being smarter, and helping less deserving male co-workers pull in bonuses and get promotions.

We are in the streets. We are no longer silent. Trump is merely the ribbon. The package is much greater than he could ever be. It is institutional systematic misogynistic oppression.

We are no longer patient. We will not be silent. We are DONE.

There are more women Congressional nominees in 2018 in Texas than ever in our nation’s history. Some will win. Will it make enough of a difference? No. Not nearly. But we are DONE with patience. We are DONE with silence. We are DONE with making men look good and get promotions and bonuses.

There is no way that any piss ant like Donald Trump could scratch the surface of our anger. It has been simmering from the beginning of time. It is 100 years since Women in Texas got the right to vote in the Democratic Primary. Then some judge dared to call their votes unconstitutional and demand a recount using only the votes of men.

The U.S. Constitution was written 242 years ago. Women were not included except as chattel. My first American ancestor landed on these shore in 1630. That is 388 years and we live in a nation where 100 years after women first voted the U.S. Congress is only 20 percent female and from Texas less than 8 percent of the state’s federal delegation is female.

Too Little. Too Slow. Too Patient. Too accommodating.

We must stop doing the same ‘ole thing in the the same old ways. The price is too high to just “get along.”

President Attack Dog!

— Charles E. Ford, Jr.

Trump has revoked the security clearance from John O. Brennan, former Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and a dedicated official who helped keep Americans safe for over 60 years. Trump has also threatened to take the clearances from a list of other people, mostly from law enforcement or the Intelligence community. The President has the authority to revoke a security clearance from anyone but when he revokes a clearance he bypasses the victim's right to due process which includes an appeal process before the clearance is cancelled.

Trump's list of people for whom he intends to revoke the security clearance all have one thing in common. They have said or done something the President doesn't like. They may have insulted Trump or questioned his policies or they may be potential witnesses in the Russian Collusion investigation. In fact, Trump may obstruct justice and get away with it if he takes the security clearance from Robert Mueller and his staff investigating the Russian intrusion into the 2016 presidential election or if he revokes the clearances of potential witnesses.

The President's list is an enemies list he will use to attack and punish individual American citizens that do not agree with him or his policies. He has already used his bully pulpit to punish Comey calling for him to be fired in public before he was fired. Trump was calling for Andrew McCabe to be fired and to lose his pension for months before McAabe was fired hours before he was eligible to retire. Peter Strzok was fired because he bad mouthed Trump in private emails because Trump kept public calling for the firing. No evidence was found that Strzok's personal bias affected his work or influenced his professional decisions. Each might have been reprimanded but probably not fired if Trump had not been attacking each repeatedly on Twitter and TV.

By denying a clearance to people because they are not currently working in the Government, Trump cheats the government of a very valuable source of experience that may be critical in times of peril or prevent needless errors. We shouldn't need to reinvent the wheel every time we change personnel in the executive branch of our government. The consequences of errors by the leader of a federal department can be very serious and affect the lives of thousands. A little advice should be very welcome from an experienced individual.

The "leader" of the free world is so petty he publicly attacks individuals like a sixth grade bully and Congress does nothing to fulfill their duty to protect Americans. Sixty million people thought it was cute when Trump would call candidates on the stage with him, "Crooked Hillary," "Lying Ted," etc. He now knows no bounds nor does he care about the consequences. The President of the United States has no business attacking United States citizens and certainly should not have an enemies list.

If Trump gets away with this stunt he will do something worse and more vile. It may seem unimportant when he starts but it will soon develop into another stepping stone to his dictatorship. He proposes a need for a national leadership school starting with selected small children that will live at the school in a carefully orchestrated environment with parental consent. Eventually, attendance will not be voluntary, children will be chosen and removed from their homes. He already proved he is willing to kidnap children. And that he can get away with it. Why not? China and North Korea do it? Children in pens? Why not?

Every move Trump makes moves him closer to dictatorship status.

The Congressional Review Act

— Charles E. Ford, Jr.

The Republicans have discovered the Congressional Review Act (CRA) which became law in 1996. The intent of the CRA was for Congress and the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to have oversight of rules and regulations initiated in the Executive branch of the Government. The department or agency that initiates the rule or regulation must submit a rule report to each House of Congress and to the GAO. If the rule is not consider “major” it may take effect immediately. But for major rules and regulations Congress has 60 days to approve a “resolution of disapproval” which would have vetoed the rule or regulation. If Congress doesn’t act the rule will become law.

The Republicans were aware of this while President Obama was in office but President Obama would have vetoed the resolution of disapproval. However, when the administration changed hand on January 20, 2017 the Republicans controlled both Houses of Congress and the White House so they wasted no time attacking regulations issued in the last couple of months of Obama’s Presidency. They issued at least 14 resolutions of disapproval wiping out regulations issued by the departments of Labor, Interior, Defense, Education, Health and Human Services, the bureau of Consumer Financial Protection, the Federal Communication Commission, and the Securities Exchange Commission.

Initially, they thought they could only repeal regulations that were less than 60 days old but then someone realized the clock did not start until the regulation was submitted to Congress and the GAO for review. The Executive branch has been really sloppy about complying with that requirement so any regulation that has never been submitted for review is an open target for the Republicans to attack with a resolution of disapproval no matter how long it has been in affect. To show how serious the Republicans are about repealing rules and regulations H.R. 1170 has been referred to committee.

H.R. 1170 – 115th Congress (2017-2018) requires each federal agency to submit to Congress a list of any rules for which the agency did not comply with requirements under the Congressional Review Act to report on the issuance of such rules to the House of Representatives, the Senate, and the Government Accountability Office.

Regulations (rules) exist to protect people or the environment. Somebody dumped dangerous chemical in a drinking water source, or let poisonous chemical seep into a river or lake contaminating the water, or a corporation saved a few dollars by not buying safety equipment that cost an employee an eye or life. People are lazy and reject change. It took decades to convince buckling up their seat belt was indeed better than flying into the steering wheel or the windshield. It also took Government regulations to convince auto makers it was to their advantage to put seat belts in the car and pass the cost onto consumers.

Do you want your employer to save a few bucks on that safety guard that fell off the machine or replace your worn office chair with a folding chair. You don’t really need those ergonomic features, do you?

It is hard to tell how far the Republicans will go repealing these regulations but so far in 2018 there have been 219 resolutions of disapproval filed so they can tell CEO’s they are getting rid of all these burdensome regulations.

OPEN LETTER

Open letter to Governor Greg Abbott and Lt. Governor Dan Patrick

Texas Kids Can't Wait
Texans for Public Education
August 22, 2018

Attention Governor Greg Abbott and Lt. Governor Dan Patrick:

Lately, the two of you have suddenly begun claiming how much you love teachers despite your actions over the last decade or so. Both of you have thrown around some big numbers. Mr. Patrick saying he wants a $10,000 per year raise for teachers. Mr. Abbott says he wants teachers to make six figures.

This confuses me a bit, as my experience with the two of you is that you love many things more than public education.

You have shown love for charter schools, vouchers, tax credits, Empower Texans, unfunded mandates, increased bureaucracy, less local control by school boards, a retreat by the state in its constitutional obligations in regards to school finance, higher property taxes as a result. Words are twisted to cover it all up with an A-F accountability system (supposedly simplified) which offers a 100 plus page manual to outline the formulas within formulas within formulas and serves no other purpose than to allow you to hold up a big red "F." You now can push your agendas, a repression of teacher votes through government offices, and so many other things that I cannot name them all.

It boggles my mind that you would then consider the public so ignorant of your actions that you believe that you can now sell yourselves as friends of public education. It comes across to me as the height of hypocrisy.

Want to change my mind? Prove me wrong.

If you want teachers to believe that you have truly turned over a new leaf and wish to support public education rather than simply grandstanding with meaningless rhetoric 90 days before an election, then call a special session and do it now.

You have the senate. No one in the House would stop any kind of bill you propose for these purposes. Why wait on the uncertainty of elections? Let's see you put state money where your mouth is. Call a special session and get busy.

Or are you simply waiting on the polls to close?

I won't hold my breath on real action by the two of you. I dare you to prove me wrong.

You might even change my mind about you if you have the fortitude to call a special session, but there are no special interests paying you to do it, so I'm guessing that I and my colleagues will still be voting against the two of you in November.

The ball's in your court.

Statement on Hurricane Harvey Anniversary Visit by Vice President Mike Pence

Dallas, TX -- Former Sheriff of Dallas County and Democratic Nominee for Governor Lupe Valdez issued the following statement:

"One year after Hurricane Harvey, resilient Houstonians and Gulf Coast residents have little reason to celebrate as so many areas of our state still suffer from the massive destruction brought by the storm. During this time, a lack of federal funding for infrastructure repair has left us far short of the $125 billion it will take to fully recover, while Governor Greg Abbott has refused to tap the Rainy Day Fund despite a direct request from Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner and local leaders across the region.

"Throughout this time of need, our communities have stood in solidarity with each other as they piece their lives back together without the full extent of much-needed state and federal support, showing the strength that makes us proud to be Texans.

"This has been inspiring to witness, but without a plan in place to prevent such a disaster from impacting the region again, quality rebuilding remains in question.

"When Vice President Mike Pence makes an insincere visit to Rockport today, I hope he takes a good look at the residents whose lives have been upended by a conservative leadership that refuses to fight for their safety. Our recovery depends on learning from this mistake, not using suffering as a political ploy -- an afterthought to a fundraising stop."

Lupe Valdez: As Vice President Mike Pence makes an insincere visit to Rockport today, he should take a good look at the residents who have been abandoned by a conservative leadership. Our recovery depends on learning from this mistake, not using suffering as a political ploy — an afterthought to a fundraising stop.

Grace Pendland: Yes, well, insincere is right, Lupe, because he actually came into Houston for a $70,000 host donation event. It is just a political showing to go to Rockport-Fulton. 4 Like

Carol Teston Hughes: The people in Rockport would be better off without a visit from him. He's tainted. 4 Like

Mathew Estes: Carol Teston Hughes I live in Rockport. it was actually really sad to see how many here were so excited that Pence was coming. Sad to say the majority here love Trump and Pence Like

BITS & PIECES

Grandmas for Good

“Why were Trump’s supporters so convinced that Clinton was the more corrupt candidate even as reporters uncovered far more damning evidence about Trump’s foundation than they did about Clinton’s? Likely because Clinton’s candidacy threatened traditional gender roles. For many Americans, female ambition—especially in service of a feminist agenda—in and of itself represents a form of corruption. “When female politicians were described as power-seeking,” noted the Yale researchers Victoria Brescoll and Tyler Okimoto in a 2010 study, “participants experienced feelings of moral outrage (i.e., contempt, anger, and/or disgust).” 23 Comments 28 Shares

- ★Bottom line--they simply did not want a woman for President of the US. Look at what they got instead.
- ★Sounds like something from the dark ages. Where do these people live??
- ★Why are men so afraid of strong women? Because they know that women are smarter, stronger and able to multitask!
- ★They are doing it now on Pelosi, Feinstein, Waters, Warren and other strong women in Congress. Also, watch how women who are running for office are reported.
- ★It is a twisted sense of what is important. Fox news has done a great job of teaching people to think at a low level. The folks in power do not want high level thinkers!
- ★Because they are not too bright!???
- ★They see the Emperor all dressed up!
- ★This trump is overly using his fingers to communicate to the entire world, do you have any idea when is he flying out of USA?
- ★Does this really surprise anyone? This is the real reason they are going after Planned Parenthood. They fear Women helping Women.
- ★How about writing an article about I don't care what they believe?
- ★And so they got what they deserve
- ★Horrorifying and absolutely true.
- ★Yes. Male supremacy!
- ★Because they are really stupid!
- ★Brainwashed. He tells them exactly what they want to hear and not what they need to hear.
- ★Fox news has them brainwashed
- ★Party loyalty especially by evangelical who would support the devil himself if it meant getting more seats on the supreme court. Its all about their greed for power to get it no matter what. This is what they've been told to do for 40 years now since becoming a political body since Reagan supported religious political activism and Jimmy Carter kept his religion separate. When they get the power they need they will begin to institute their religious ideology on the population. Overturn Roe v Wade; outlaw rights for homosexuals; demand private school funding; implement religious teachings in public schools; tear down the separation of church and state. Then install a false sabbath of sunday worship on the nation.

GARLAND DEMOCRATIC VOICE IN MEMORIAM

We mark the passing of Eli Davis

Eli Davis, 88, a Dallas treasure died August 7, 2018.

Rosalind Davis-Grimes, one of Davis' five adult children, said her dad was the consummate teacher, mentor and community servant.

"There were so many teachable moments he shared throughout our lives," Davis-Grimes said of her father, a great-great grandfather of four. "He mentored, encouraged and helped shape the minds of thousands of youth, children and adults. ... He exhibited dynamic leadership."

Davis served as a political operative for local, county, state and national candidates and elected officials. He was a veteran administrative assistant to state Rep. Jesse Jones; a 35-year veteran Democratic precinct chairman; and president of the Texas Coalition of Black Democrats' Dallas chapter. On the Dallas County Democratic Party Executive Committee, he interacted with top government officials, including former President Barack Obama, Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and former Gov. Ann Richards.

A tireless servant, he volunteered his time to help others. He was active in about two dozen civic, community service, and college alumni organizations including the Dallas Area Agency on Aging advisory board; Dallas Homeowners League board; Big Brothers Big Sisters; and the Boy Scouts as a Scoutmaster. He was also a five-time Dallas County grand juror and twice served as foreman.

His honors include being an honorary Texas Ranger and special assistant to Gov. Ann Richards. He received a Dallas School District Distinguished Leadership Award.

A celebration of life service was held at Greater New Zion Baptist Church where Davis was a member for more than 75 years, serving as a deacon and trustee officer, Brotherhood president, youth director and a member of various ministries, including jail and transportation.

Eli Davis survived by his wife of 66 years, Earlie Mae Rhodes Davis, a large family and a host of friends and associates.

Rest in peace, faithful servant and friend,
